I. Acknowledgments

This Wildlife Action Plan is the product of the dedicated effort and commitment of the individuals acknowledged below and the agencies and organizations that they represent. The hard work and expertise that they shared has resulted in a shared vision and conservation guide for Vermont's fish, wildlife and plants for the coming decade. In addition, we extend our appreciation to all of the individuals who provided thoughtful questions and comments, which have enhanced the quality of this Action Plan.

We gratefully acknowledge the ongoing guidance, support and unremitting optimism provided by Dee Blanton of the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service and the rest of the staff at the Region 5-Federal Assistance office. Thanks also to the Action Planners and wildlife diversity staff of the 12 other fish and wildlife agencies that together with Vermont and Washington, D.C. participated in monthly conference calls for the past two years to coordinate, collaborate and share ideas, problems and solutions for Action Plan development and region-wide conservation...and to Karen Terwilliger and Elizabeth Crisfield for organizing those calls and for synthesizing regional conservation efforts and compiling a lexicon for Action Plan data management.

We thank Vermont's congressional delegation who helped create the opportunity for this Wildlife Action Plan and for establishing and maintaining the State Wildlife Grants program that helps fund Action Plan development and implementation. State Wildlife Grants together with the other federal wildlife conservation funding programs are vital to keeping common species common.

We humbly note that our goal would have been unattainable without a solid foundation—the rich legacy of Vermont's wildlife conservation history—the observations, stories, data, research, planning efforts, conservation, education and wildlife-recreation programs, institutions and traditions established and nurtured by those passionate about wildlife and Vermont's natural heritage over the past two centuries.

Finally, to all those furry, finned, feathered, scaled, slimy and shelled creatures that also call Vermont home, the charismatic megafauna and the enigmatic microfauna which so fascinate and enrich our lives and economies, we look forward to a bright and healthy future together in the Green Mountain State.
